EFSA NETHERLANDS

Dear fellow EFSA members and friends,

This year's EFSA European Species Championships brings us to Neeltje Jans in the Netherlands. This is a completely new venue for me and this makes me even more excited to be fishing there.

I am sure Clarinda, Miranda and Frank have an outstanding programme for us in stock.

We are targeting several species of shark at this event which in itself is very exciting.

Neeltje Jans is located north of Ghent and south west of Rotterdam which should make it easy for anglers from all over Europe to travel there.

Attractions nearby include a tropical salt-water aquarium, a water park including a water slide, water playground and hurricane simulator.

I hope I will see and fish with many of you there!

Marcus Wüst

EFSA President/Chairman

EFSA NETHERLANDS

Welcome to the Netherlands, Neeltje Jans

After having the pleasure of organising an EFSA SHORE championship five times, we are delighted to add to our first EFSA Species Championship.

The championship will be held from Neeltje Jans.

Neeltje Jans is approximately 285 hectares in size and is located halfway between the Oosterscheldekering between Schouwen and Noord-Beveland, but nevertheless belongs to the municipality of Veere on Walcheren. Neeltje Jans is the name of the boat that ran aground on the sandbar; it is an old folk name for the patron goddess Nehalennia.

Neeltje Jans used to be a sandbar in the mouth of the Oosterschelde estuary.

Raising the sandbar created the working island, which was used at the time the storm surge barrier was built.

From Neeltje Jans, our reserved boats will take you to the waters around Neeltje Jans.

For this competition, the target species is shark

In the waters around Neeltje Jans, these have been present in increasing numbers in recent years, making fishing for them very attractive.

EFSA Netherlands always guarantees good organisation and puts the participant first. We will do everything within our power to offer you the best and finest championship possible.

EFSA Netherlands is proud. And I, Clarinda van der Zande as the new Chairman of EFSA Netherlands in particular.

Together with Miranda Koop and Frank van der Zande, I am embarking on this adventure and organisation and we would like to welcome you.

We also wish you a successful and lovely time.

Shark fishing

Shark fishing in the Netherlands is seasonal. Depending on sea water temperatures, shark fishing starts around mid-May and ends in mid-October. The most commonly caught North Sea Shark is the Spotted Smooth Shark.

If Enzo Knol on board the Sea Eagle can catch one, you should surely be able to too! Of course, our expert and helpful skippers are ready to help you. How wonderful it is to catch a Shark on the North Sea. By the way, we put all caught Sharks back in the water, Catch and Release!

The spotted smooth shark

The Spotted Smooth Shark, as also shown in the video with Enzo Knol, shot at our location at De Zeearend I, is truly a sport fish. The smallest ever caught by us was 16 cm, meaning the Shark was just born. 123 cm was the biggest and that really gave a nice fight! This Shark can grow up to 160 cm, so these big guys also swim around the spots we fish specifically for Sharks.

Inexperienced angler?

Even at the Sharks, you need not worry as an inexperienced angler. Thanks to the good guidance of our Skippers and the right quality of our rods and lines combined with super bait, you can join us with family, friends and the kids for a successful adventure.

By the way, there are other species of Sharks that we catch with some regularity. The Smooth Shark, Rough Shark and the Dogfish. However, these species are a lot more difficult to catch, which is why we mainly fish for the Spotted Smooth Shark. On request, we can of course make an exception.

Route from roundabout Midden Zeeland Kamperland Roompot Banjaard residence to:
Deltapark Neeltje Jans B
and to location fishing boats C

As a working island, Neeltje Jans is part of the Eastern Scheldt storm surge barrier.

After the completion of the Delta Works, an information and amusement park was opened on Neeltje Jans.

The information centre features an exhibition about the Delta Works with (visual) information.

Neeltje Jans is about 285 hectares and is located halfway between Schouwen and Noord-Beveland, but nevertheless belongs to the municipality of Veere on Walcheren.

Neeltje Jans is the name of the boat that ran aground on the sandbar; it is an old folk name for the patron goddess Nehalennia.

Neeltje Jans used to be a sandbar in the mouth of the Oosterschelde estuary.

Raising the sandbar created the working island, which was used at the time the storm surge barrier was built.

When the work was completed in 1986, Natuurmonumenten and Het Zeeuwse Landschap bought the island and converted it into a nature reserve that is part of Oosterschelde National Park.

A remaining pillar can be found near the island.

This 66th pillar was made around 1980 along with the other pillars, in case one of the others proved to be faulty, but was never put into use.

Since then, the pillar has stood lonely in its dock.

A climbing centre was located on the pillar, but it is now closed.

On the island is a depot with stones in many sizes for emergencies.

When a dam near Maastricht was damaged in January 2024, a large number of trucks with stones were brought from Neeltje Jans to Limburg to fill the hole.

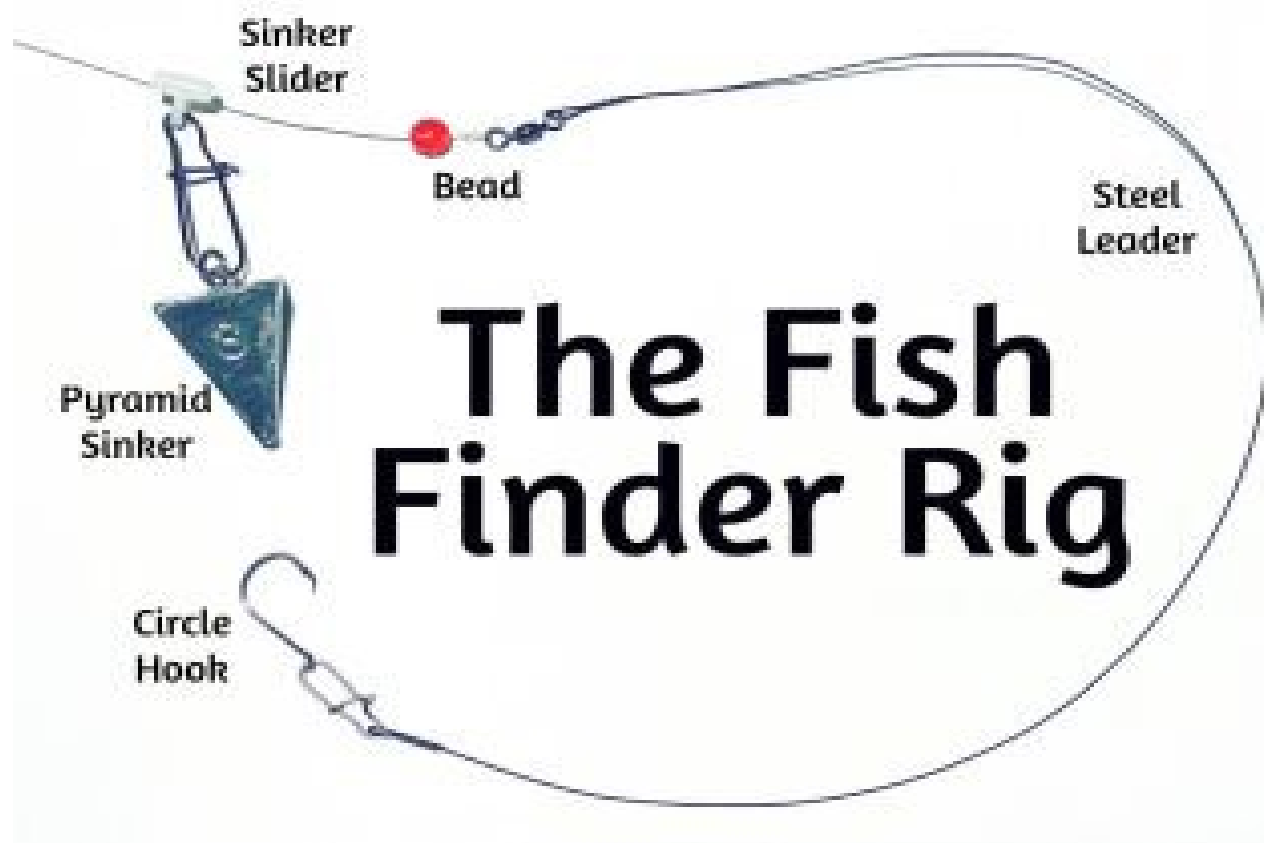

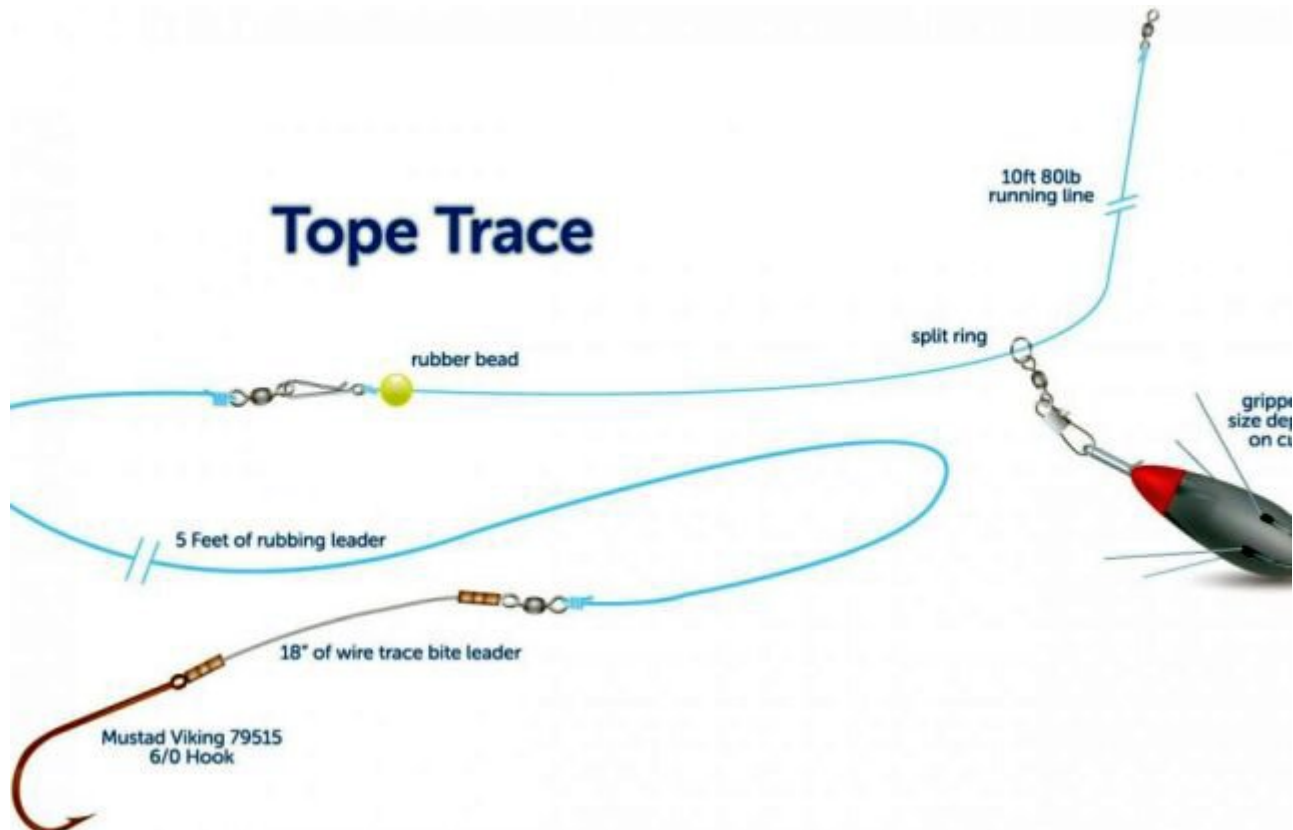

Wind turbines have been located on Neeltje Jans since 1991.

The initial eight smaller turbines have since been replaced by two wind farms of four turbines each.

Wind farm Bouwdokken forms the additional third wind farm.

The radar tower De Lange Neel has stood on the island since 2016. On 5 July 2015, the second stage of the Tour de France ended at Neeltje Jans.
